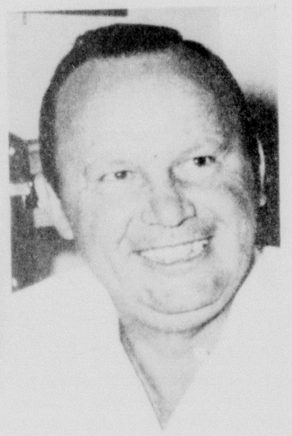
Hunsley Development Sold; Rapid Expansion Is Planned



A.W. Lair

Arch Hunsley

By CARROLL WILSON

Posh Hunsley Hills and about 1000 other acres have been sold by Mr. and Mrs. Arch Hunsley to Canyon attorney and entrepreneur A.W. Lair in what Lair termed probably the biggest land deal made in Randall County history.

Hunsley and Lair jointly announced they entered into contract recently on the land deal. No specifics on the contract were revealed.

Lair said he will begin immediate and far-reaching expansion of the Hunsley Hills addition and the other more than 1000 acres included in the deal.

Two sections of land bounded on the south by U.S. 60, on the west by the VFW Road and on the east by U.S. 87 and about 80 acres of land just east of U.S. 87 between the West Texas State University farm and Taylor and Sons Lumber Co. are included in the deal.

Also included are all undeveloped lots in the addition, the golf course, country clubhouse, swimming pool and the Cambridge House Apartments.

Lair said the deal includes all property owned by the Hunsleys north of Canyon.

"My immediate plans are to continue to carry out a high class residential development, continuing the job Mr. and Mrs. Hunsley have done over the past 17 years," Lair said.

Lair said he bought the property because "I thought it was the prettiest and best piece of development property in the Amarillo-Canyon area and has potential for future residential development."

The Canyon attorney said he'll be disappointed "if we're not able to fill the first section in five years."

He said he is currently seeking bids to pave all available streets in the current addition, that portion of the land which is inside the city limits of the City of Canyon.

Hunsley said such a move could open up between 60 and 80 lots for immediate development. He said sewer and water lines are within easy access of new development property.

Of the golf course, which was designed by nationally-famous designer Harry Hughes, Lair said he has no immediate plans and until such plans are finalized, the course will remain open to the public.

"I expect in time to improve the golf course and let it be the center of a high-class residential area with houses backing up to the fairways all around the golf course areas," Lair said.

He said he hopes to have a major development on the property underway by late this summer.

Lair said he has not had time to fully review the restrictions which Hunsley has used in developing the Hunsley Hills addition, restrictions Hunsley has characterized as the tightest in West Texas. But, he said, continued development will be restricted.

Currently, about 40 homes are located on lots in Hunsley Hills and all measure more than about 2500 square feet of living space. Prices are well above the $30,000 figure.

Hunsley said he has had offers on the property from throughout the United States, but decided to sell to Lair because "he lives here and he knows our area and I believe the interests of the community can better be served by someone who's a part of the community."

Hunsley, who has owned the property since the 1940s, first began developing a Hunsley Hills addition, fashioning his plans after better additions in Dallas and Houston, in 1955.

He said he decided to sell the property due to age and health.

"We have reached the age where we think it best to get caught up on our reading and the travel we want to do," he said.

Hunsley said he hopes in the 'People' On The Move Aided On, Out Of World By Local

Not long ago, Ted Smith was helping test the world's most far out living accomodations, a kind of space-age motel with full built-ins for three men definitely on the move.

Today, Ted Smith is operating the more common variety of living accomodation for people on the move.

Smith, new owner of the Trail Motor Hotel in Canyon, left his job just over a month ago at the McDonald-Douglas Corp. plant in St. Louis. It was there that Smith put to full use his degree in aerospace engineering administration as he aided a team in testing a portion of the Skylab, which is now orbiting the earth.

Smith, a native of Beaver County, Okla., joined the Skylab project almost at its inception in the McDonald-Douglas plant in St. Louis back in 1966.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a degree in aerospace engineering, he joined the corporation and became a planner or scheduler in their testing program.

The St. Louis plant designed, manufactured and tested one part of the Skylab — the airlock between the astronaut's living quarters and the laboratory part of the now-orbiting craft.

More than a thousand persons were involved in the design and testing of the airlock before it was sent to Cape Kennedy last October for mating with the other units of the craft, finally tested and launched into space last month.

It was Smith's job to schedule and plan the various testing which would be accomplished to ensure there were no problems in the airlock.

"On a program like this, they make up a big schedule to show the design phase, the manufacturing phase and the test phase," he explained. "Within the test phase, there are test schedules to show what is to be performed and when."

As many as 300 persons participated in the test phase of the airlock construction.

Smith said the test personnel were broken down into a half dozen groups with each group containing experts in a particular field.

"One group is structure oriented, one is electrical oriented, a third is communications and electronics oriented, another is oriented toward fluid and gas systems and another is operations oriented," he said.

The airlock designed and built at the St. Louis plant is an intergral unit, Smith said, and actually provides a passageway for the astronauts as they move from living quarters to laboratory. It allows the air pressure in each separate unit to be maintained.

The testing which accompanied the manufacture of the airlock was meticulous.

"You're talking about a man's life up there and they test down to a gnat's eyelash," Smith said.

Testing begins with the smallest component part and proceeds as the parts are put together at each stage to make certain everything operates as it should.

Months of testing evolve before the entire airlock is placed in a large chamber and tested for its reaction under conditions simulating outer space.

Smith said the air in the

Umbarger Liquor Vote Set July 7 By County

Umbarger area residents will vote July 7 on whether they want alcoholic beverages sold in their precinct.

Randall County commissioners called the election Monday as a result of petitions received by the county.

Polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. for the precinct. The election will be at the Umbarger school gymnasium.

County Clerk LeRoy Hutton presented commissioners the election order after certifying that the petitions received from Umbarger residents to call the election were legal and in order.

Commissioners, noting that they have no choice when presented a petition on whether or not to call such an election, voiced no opposition.

The July election will mark the first such election for the Umbarger precinct.

Almost two years ago, petitions were presented to county officials but no election was called due to a legal technicality which said the precinct could not vote on such an issue for at least 18 months. The 18-month period ended in February.

More than 180 persons will be eligible to vote in the election, which will determine whether all alcoholic beverages including mixed drinks can be sold within the precinct.

If the issue passes, the Umbarger precinct will become the second in Randall County to vote wet. The South Amarillo precinct voted last fall to allow the sale of all alcoholic beverages.

A petition calling for a local option election was circulated in the Canyon precinct last fall, but not enough signatures were obtained to call the election.

In other business Monday, commissioners spent more than three hours discussing the purchase of equipment for various county departments.

"How come all of a sudden everybody needs all this equipment," asked John Fulgenzi as he perused sheet after sheet of requests from county officials.

"Because we asked them," replied Judge Woody Pond.

"This is the first time in six years I've been asked," said Hutton.

Commissioners had decided earlier this year to ask all county departments to submit equipment requests.

Among equipment to be purchased after Monday's meeting are several new electric typewriters, roller shelves for documents, electric calculators, desks, and other equipment.

Commissioners tabled for a second week a request by the City of Canyon to donate money to the summer recreation program. In the past, the county has donated as much as $200 to the program, which draws about 400 youngsters into such recreation as swimming, twirling, golf, bowling, physical fitness, cheerleading, drama and tennis.

Pond and Sheriff Cliff Longest were instructed by commissioners to enter negotiations with Potter County officials concerning the sharing of em-

Bore Holes Study Proposed For Co.

A study to determine the extent of the bore hole-type cesspool problem in Randall County has been proposed to county commissioners.

Commissioners received the study proposal Monday during their regular meeting.

The study is proposed as an initial step in determining whether bore-hole-type cesspools are a problem in the county and the extent of any uncovered problem.

The proposal, given commissioners by Judge Woody Pond, states that the practice of drilling large diameter bore holes for use as waste receptacles has become widespread and that the use of the bore holes poses a potential health hazard to the county.

Commissioners have met with officials from the Amarillo Bi-City-County Health Unit, the Texas Water Quality Board and representatives of area drilling companies on two occasions to discuss the bore hole problem in the county.

Brochures For Tourists Ready

A new brochure describing the virtues of life in Canyon is expected to be off the presses and distributed later this week.

A total of 25,000 copies of the brochure have been ordered by the new Canyon Board of City Development for distribution to local service stations, restaurants and motels and other businesses. The brochures are designed primarily to tell tourists about the attractions in the Canyon area.

Described in the brochure are West Texas State University, Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Canyon, Palo Duro Canyon State Park, Buffalo Lake and the musical-drama "TEXAS."

WTSU is described as the oldest state-assisted college west of Fort Worth and the first college in the West Texas area to receive university status.

Described in the WTSU portion are the various course offerings and the many activities available on the campus.

Pioneer Village, an art collection worth more than $3 million, a vast library and archives, and artifacts of the cattle industry are featured in the portion of the brochure devoted to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

The lights, sounds and story of "TEXAS," the musical-drama which plays nightly throughout two summer months in Palo Duro Canyon's Pioneer Amphitheatre are described in the portion concerning the Panhandle Heritage Foundation's production.

Food For Family Of Four Found Abandoned

Enough foodstuffs to feed a family of four for a month was found Saturday dumped along the side of a dirt road about a mile south of Canyon.

The food, originally packed in four large boxes, was found scattered but unspoiled along the roadside.

The boxes and food bore labels of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and were apparently issued by a state department of public welfare commodity distribution center.

Scattered along the roadside were several large sacks of white flour, several packages of rolled wheat, corn meal, corn grits, dried beans, enriched rice, cans of shortening, cans of chopped meat, packages of egg mix, cans of evaporated milk, bags of macaroni, sacks of instant potatoes, dry split peas, bottles of corn syrup and cans of boned chicken.

Mrs. Gail Perkins, who issues foodstuffs to indigent families through the Canyon commodity distribution office, said this week the boxes could not have been issued through the Canyon office.

"I can't imagine where it would come from unless it came from Amarillo," she said.

Mrs. Perkins said the foodstuffs discarded along the road would have provided a family of four with nourishment for about a month.

She said the foodstuffs from the state department are issued generally on a monthly basis. The last is-

Emmitt Smith To Norway For Educators Conference

Dr. Emmitt D. Smith, director of continuing education at West Texas State University, will be among a select group of U.S. educators participating in an International Management Training for Education Change (IMTEC) conference at Oslo, Norway, next week.

The four-day conference is conducted by the Centre for Educational Research and Innovation, a part of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris. The conference opens Sunday.

Expenses of the participants from the United States will be paid by the National Program for Educational Leadership (NPEL) at Ohio State University.

Ten nations hold membership in the worldwide organization. Smith said four U.S. states were selected by the NPEL to participate in the IMTEC conference.

Besides Texas, he said, the states were Oregon, North Carolina and Rhode Island.

"Texas was selected because of its Teacher Center Project," Smith said.

West Texas State University was among the leaders in developing the TCP when Smith was dean of the College of Education.

Smith was named to represent Dr. J. W. Edgar, Texas commissioner of education, at the conference.

In a letter to Edgar and Smith, Dr. Luvern L. Cunningham, dean of the College of Education at Ohio State, said:

"You and your state have been selected for participation in this important enterprise because of the creative efforts already undertaken in education in Texas. We hope that this initial conference will be only the launching of a long-term international effort to examine change and change processes in education."

Cunningham said, "A key objective of the IMTEC effort is to develop processes and experiences from which beneficial spin-off may be felt in your schools."

Other Texas educators scheduled to participate in the workshop were Dr. Bevington Reed, commissioner of higher education; Dr. Jack Davidson, Austin superintendent of schools; Lorrin Kennamer of the University of Texas and Kyle Killough, director of the Texas Center for Improvement of Educational Systems.

hydraulogist, has told commissioners he is personally against the use of bore holes because they pose the potential of polluting the county's underground water supply.

Dr. G. Mason Kahn has told commissioners that the city of Amarillo does not allow the use of bore holes.

"Sewage is disposed to these units without protective safeguards for the underlying potable groundwater supply from the Ogallala aquifer," the study proposal presented Monday states. "The problem is to determine the impact these drainage wells have on the quality of the groundwater. Volumes of sewage, subsequent dispersion in the subsurface, and long-term implication of seepage disposal need to be analyzed."

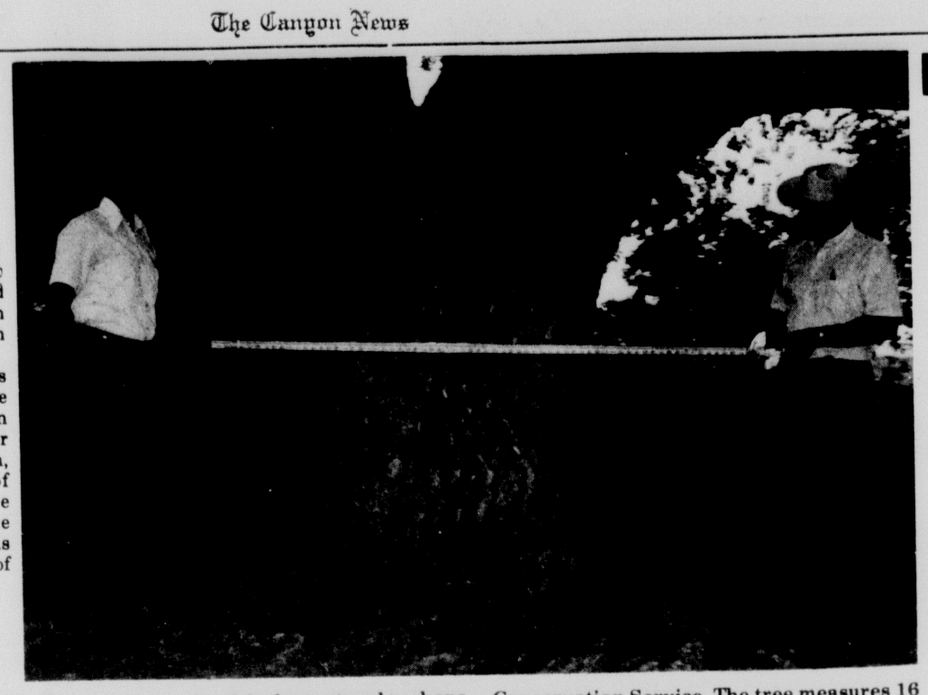
The proposal says that particular attention of the study will be made to concentrated disposal areas outside the cities of Canyon and Amarillo, and specifically in mobile home parks and rural developments.

The initial survey proposed would locate and tabulate existing bore hole locations. From the data collected, the proposal states, decisions on the use of bore holes within the county could be reached.

The proposal proposes using the computer printout of the county tax office to obtain addresses and names of rural area persons who would receive a questionnaire on the subject.

Commissioners have discussed, but not taken action on, the idea of controlling bore hole drilling in the county through actual regulation or through self-regulation of the drilling companies.

Dr. Winn has been asked by commissioners to work with the drilling companies to devise a set of self-regulations.



What could be one of the largest and perhaps oldest trees in the area was measured Tuesday by Dan Wright and Don Dolle of the Soil Conservation Service. The tree measures 16 feet in circumference.

Towering Elm Largest In County?

A towering elm tree, believed by some to be possibly the largest tree in the county, was eyed Tuesday by two representatives from the Amarillo Soil Conservation Service office.

Allan Vaughn, a biologist, and John Wright, a range conservationist, said Tuesday the tree is one of the largest they've seen in the Panhandle.

"It's the biggest elm I've ever seen here or in East Texas," Wright said.

The tree, tentatively identified as an American Elm, is located on Camp Christmas Tree, a boy's camp south of Bivins Lake in the north part of the county.

From measurements obtained Tuesday, the two speculated the tree was planted about 40 years ago, making it one of the older elm trees planted in the area, also.

The tree, which has a short, stocky trunk, branches profusely to a height of about 60 feet.

Vaughn, although he could not make a positive identification of the tree on the scene, said the growth pattern is typical of the American Elm.

He said that if the tree is, in fact, an American Elm it was very likely planted by someone at the location. American Elms are not native to the area.

Most elm trees in the area are Siberian Elms, commonly referred to as Chinese Elms, he said. But, he doubted the tree is a Siberian Elm.

The tree measures 16 feet in circumference at the trunk.

Wright said it would be safe to say the tree is one of the older to be found in the county area.

ing are available to the tourist at Buffalo Lake, the brochure will say. The brochure will also tell of the more than a million ducks and geese which flock to the lake during winter months.

A canyon described as a combination of the Painted Desert and the Grand Canyon, Palo Duro Canyon is represented in the brochure. Horse trails, the Sad Monkey Railroad and a short statistical sketch of the canyon are also explained and given.

Canyon is described as the educational and cultural center of the Panhandle, home of WTSU, and the numerous other tourist attractions in the area.

Full color pictures will be featured in this year's brochure, the first one published in several years and the first published using full color.

The brochure and other projects of the board of city development are financed by the City of Canyon.

chamber used in the testing is removed from the chamber until the space environment is very nearly approximated.

"Normal pressure is 15 pounds per square inch," he said, "and the chamber can press it down so it represents pressure at an altitude of 200 miles."

Smith said the testing procedure took about 15 months to accomplish.

The airlock contract was let in 1966.

The completed unit was shipped to Cape Kennedy in October 1972 and there it was mated with other sections of the Skylab and the entire craft was again thoroughly tested.

Smith said a second airlock was manufactured and tested at the St. Louis plant primarily for use in simulating some problems which the Skylab might be expected to encounter.

Just a week before three astronauts were sent into space aboard the Skylab, Smith left the McDonald-Douglas plant and bought the Trail Motel here.

"I guess everybody wants to be their own boss and own their own business," he said. "Well, I'm no different. Obviously I couldn't buy my own aerospace company."

Smith, as he eyes the daily headlines about the success of the Skylab mission, is undoubtedly proud of his role in placing the craft in space.

"Part of it is luck," he said, "but a lot goes to the teams that work on it. They test it over and over and over until they're sure so that not too much can go wrong."

Smith completed his master's degree in aerospace engineering administration at Washington University in St. Louis while working at the St. Louis plant.

He and his wife, Karen have three children, Lynn, Leslee and Lauren.

Scholarship Is Given Miss Fulton

The Texas Federation of Music Clubs has awarded a partial scholarship and transportation costs for Lauran Ann Fulton of Canyon to attend the National Music Camp summer session in Interlochen, Mich.

Miss Fulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Fulton Jr., received a $475 scholarship and $100 transportation costs. She was the winner of the first division scholarship.

She has been accepted to the session at Interlochen which begins June 23 and continues for two months with studies in voice, choir program, advanced modern dance, operetta workshop and piano ensembles.

A 1973 graduate of Canyon High School, Miss Fulton was a member of the Texas all-state choir and has won numerous other awards.

She was voted most talented senior by the '73 CHS class and received the outstanding choral award from CHS.

When Miss Fulton returns to Canyon she will attend West Texas State University where she will continue music study as a music scholarship recipient.

Mrs. Perkins said she issues food after interviewing families to check for eligibility or accepts referrals from the Amarillo welfare office.

ployment of bailiffs for the 181st and 47th District Courts which hear cases in both counties.

Longest last week suggested the county pay a prorated share of the bailiff's salaries and the bailiffs could come to Canyon when their courts are in session. Thus, he said, sheriff's deputies, who now act as bailiffs for the two district courts, would be free to pursue normal duties.

"The only question I had," Pond said, "is that when they ask for salary raises and so forth we make sure we get some say so. If we don't, we're not going to have them."

Longest agreed that any agreement worked out between the two counties would have to include a clause calling for mutual agreement on salary raises for the bailiffs.

In other business, Hutton and District Clerk LaQuitta Polvadore were given the okay to attend an upcoming conference in Corpus Christi.

New Degree In Accounting At University

A new graduate degree program — Master of Professional Accounting (MPA) — is the latest addition to the professionally oriented School of Business at West Texas State University.

The program, approved last year by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, is designed for part-time as well as fulltime students, Dr. James B. Davis Jr. says.

Davis, chairman of the Department of Accounting in the School of Business, adds that the MPA program will offer thesis and nonthesis options.

"The MPA program is designed to serve students regardless of their undergraduate major concentration," Davis says.

To provide a basic field of knowledge and to insure a competitive background among all candidates, he adds, the MPA degree candidate who has not completed a bachelor's degree with a major in accounting must establish proficiency in the following areas: Accounting, economics, computer information systems, statistics, marketing, management and finance.

Proficiency may be established through successful completion of advanced standing examinations or university courses within the business areas, Davis says.

In the thesis and nonthesis options, Davis says, the program calls for at least 18 credit hours of accounting and some experience in research techniques and activities.

"A small research project and 33 credit hours of course work are required within the nonthesis option," he says.

"A master's thesis and 24 credit hours of course work are required within the thesis option."

Davis says that some courses leading to the MPA will be included in the evening class offerings in the School of Business next fall.

Golf Tourney Slated

Friday at noon is the deadline for entry in the Men's Partnership Golf Tournament to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Canyon Country Club.

Entry fee is $40 per team. All amateur golfers with current handicap cards are eligible to play in the tourney which will begin at 8:30 a.m. each day.

All entry fees will go toward prizes, which will be gift certificates for merchandise in the country club's golf shop.

The event is limited to 50 teams, said Dude Kinkade of the Canyon Country Club. He added that 26 teams have already signed up to play.

Persons wishing to enter are asked to call Kinkade at the country club.

CYO Takes A Picnic

By REBA RAEF

HELLO, AGAIN FROM Umbarger. Some 35 St. Mary's Catholic Youth Organization members and sponsors, went to the Panhandle Childrens Home, last Sunday, to treat the children and Sisters to a picnic. Each year, the C.Y.O. takes a fried chicken picnic lunch, complete with all the trimmings, and picks up the Sisters and the children from the home and takes them to the park in Panhandle for an afternoon of fun. Games of softball, baseball and football were enjoyed by our C.Y.O. members as well as the children from the home. Sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Batenhorst and family; Mr. and Mrs. V.M. Ramaekers and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hartman and family.

THE PISTOLS AND Petticoats Square Dance Club held an election of officers last Sunday evening, following a family picnic at Buffalo Lake. New officers are Curly and Ramona Allen, president; Vincent and Gladys Meyer, vice-president; Ray and Virginia Grimes, treasurer; Gertrude Friemel, secretary; social chairman, Richard D. and Mary Theresa Friemel; property chairman, Joe and Gertrude Grotegut; Bill and Lois Thompson are reporters and Betty Ferguson is the club sweetheart. The club will host a "cool" dance Sunday, June 17, in St. Mary's parish hall at 8:00 p.m.

ALL UMBARGER 4-H club members, who have made reservations for the Randall County Camp, to be held June 22 and 23, please call Barbara Haerman at 499-2743, by June 20th, if you need transportation.

ACCORDING TO PAUL Ferguson, Buffalo Lake Manager, the crowds at the lake were especially heavy this past weekend.

DONNA SUE AND Linda Marie Hartman will attend the Farmers Union Youth Camp to be held in Merkel, Texas from June 17 through June 21.

THE BILL THOMPSONS hosted a surprise party for their daughter, Mrs. Howard Koch, following her graduation from high school Friday evening. Since Letitia had moved to Dumas before Canyon High had graduation, she and four other students were graduated in a special ceremony. After a dinner at the Yum Yum Tree for the graduates and their parents, the party was held in the Thompson home. Some 34 guests from Hereford, Amarillo, Claude and Umbarger attended.

JULY 7, 1973, has been set by the Randall County Commissioners Court as the day for the election in Precinct 3 to determine whether all alcoholic beverages, including mixed drinks may be sold in the precinct, which includes Umbarger. This will be the day to exercise your voting privilege and make your wishes known. If you don't cast your vote, just this could change the final decision of the issue, so, let's get out and VOTE.

THE UMBARGER 4-H club members who were selected to attend the Southwestern Public Service Company electric camp at Cloudcroft, New Mexico, from July 16 to July 20, are Dwayne Hartman, Linda Hartman and Janet Wilhelm. Donna Hartman will attend as Council Delegate from Randall County.

THE DEADLINE FOR entries in the Randall County Arts and Crafts Show, to be held June 26, is June 24. All of you 4-H'ers who plan to enter the show may call Mrs. Carl B. Hartman at 499-2856 or Mrs. Bernard Hartman at 499-2748, and they will pick up your entries for you.

Math Workshops Offered At WT

Special three-week workshops in mathematics are being offered both sessions of summer school at West Texas State University.

The class titles are history of mathematics, finite mathematics — GRE course and a problems workshop. All three courses will carry three-semester hours credit.

The first workshop, currently underway, is the history course taught by Fletcher Moseley, associate professor of mathematics. The course studies the lives and times of several great mathematicians.

A by-product of this investigation will be the development and evolution of mathematical ideas and concepts through the research and talents of these men, Moseley says.

Dr. Miguel Tarrab, associate professor of mathematics, will teach the two-fold workshop on finite mathematics and the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) beginning June 25.

Finite mathematics deals with topics which are interesting and that at the same time do not involve calculus, Tarrab says.

"The learning-by-doing process will be followed, without homework or outside reading, as all of the work will be done in class collectively," he says.

The GRE path is a study of basic mathematics principals that will enable any student even those who have never had a college math course, to pass the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test.

"This test is given to all students prior to entrance to graduate school in most colleges and universities around the country," Tarrab says.

Persons interested in the finite-GRE workshop and are not currently enrolled in any summer classes may register the first day of class in room 306 of University Complex South. Fees will also be paid at that time.

Dr. H. L. Cook, chairman of the mathematics department, will conduct a workshop in problems in mathematics beginning July 17.

This workshop will be concerned with graphing and mathematical models. Graphs of elementary functions will be constructed and models which generate elementary functions will be examined.

"Most, if not all, of the work may be done during the class period," Cook says.

Joint Meeting Slated For Two Clubs

Miss Knowles Wins Basketball Trophy

Miss Nicki Knowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Knowles of 1705 Hillcrest, Canyon, was awarded the "Most Valuable Defensive Player" trophy last week at the Ranger Junior College basketball camp held in Ranger.

Miss Knowles will be in the eighth grade at Canyon Junior High next year. This is the second year that she has attended the basketball camp.

Approximately 120 girls ranging from the sixth grade through junior high attended the week long camp. The girls were engaged in drill and game activities. Trophy competition was held Friday.

The "Most Valuable Defensive Player" trophy was awarded to Miss Nicki Knowles of Canyon at the Ranger Junior College basketball camp held last week in Ranger.

Meeting Focuses On Gemsai Tree

At a recent Westside Club meeting, Mrs. J. V. Voelms, club president, gave a demonstration of the gemsai tree.

Mrs. Voelms also presided at the regular business meeting preceding the demonstration.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. R. A. Burrus, west of Canyon.

The next meeting has been set for June 20, at Mrs. Fred Richards home, Rt. 1, Canyon.

Choral Camp Begins Soon

The 3rd West Texas Choral Music Camp opens on the campus of West Texas State University in Canyon June 24. Applications for the one-week camp are still being accepted.

The camp will offer the young musicians experience in mixed choir, madrigal groups, men's and women's ensembles, stage choreography, voice theory and conducting.

Dr. Lee Kjelson, nationally known choral conductor from the University of Miami, Fla., will be the guest conductor. He has done extensive publishing in both choral music and music education.

Camp directors are Dr. George Umberson, chairman of the West Texas State music department, and Dr. Hugh Sanders, assistant professor of choral music at WTSU.

The camp will have one mixed choir. This group will perform a variety of pieces and will present at concert at 4 p.m. June 30.

During the week, all students will participate in rhythm activities, sectional and choir rehearsals. Auditions will be conducted to determine the section of the mixed choir where each student will sing.

A highlight of the camp is the student and talent nights during which the students participate in talent acts or musical stunts.

During the camp, a choral conductors workshop will be offered for area directors. Graduate credit of one-semester hour may be earned by enrolling for the workshop. Kjelson will teach the class. Registration for the workshop must be completed before noon June 25.

A class full of youngsters began one segment of the ecumenical vacation church school which began Tuesday here. Held in the First Methodist and First Christian Churches here, the school is sponsored by the Presbyterian, Catholic, Methodist, Christian churches.

Panhandle Landscape Suits British Couple To A Tea

The John Griegs of Ipswich defy the stereotype of the tradition-bound Englishman when they comment that Princess Margaret's fat government stipend is "a bit silly, really"—but when it comes to taking their tea, they are as British as the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

Visiting for three months with their daughter, Mrs. Gil Gillis of Mescalero Park, they brought their own tea supply. The reason, they say, is because on their last visit to America three years ago, they used 370 Lipton tea bags during their short stay.

Describing her tea-taking regimen, Mrs. Grieg says she has her first cup at 5 a.m., two cups for breakfast at 6 a.m., two cups during the Briton's 11 o'clock "break," two cups at the noon dinner hour, two more at 3 o'clock "teatime," a cup at the evening "lunch" (usually consisting of "something light like fish 'n' chips," and two cups before bed.

On weekends, the Griegs resort to coffee, which they make with milk instead of water. "Delicious," they say of the strange brew.

Ipswich, Suffolk is an eastern coastal city located about eight miles from London. Although the area is relatively flat, the Griegs say, it's not "near so wide open and spacious" as the Texas Panhandle.

Mr. Grieg, a ruddy, white-haired Scotsman with tattoos on either arm for mementos of a 12-year career in the Black Watch Regiment, is a retired employee of an Ipswich electric power plant. While doing service in the Scotch guard, he travelled to Malta (where the tattoos were made), Gibraltar, India and Egypt.

Mrs. Gillis, their daughter, came to America ten years ago after meeting and marrying her husband in England, where he was stationed during a tour with the United States Air Force.

Mrs. Gillis says she has "mixed feelings" about which country she likes best, her homeland or her adopted country. But one thing both she and her parents are sold on is the superiority of socialized medicine in Great Britain.

"You don't have to fear being ill, there," says Mrs. Grieg. "They take so much out of your pay check each month, and, in return, you got no doctor bills to worry over. And it's the same for everyone."

She said that a new set of dentures purchased recently only cost eight pounds, or $16.

Socialization of medicine, along with the nationalizing of several other British institutions, occurred early in the 20th Century in England so that, to the Griegs, the system has been working and working well for "as long as we remember." Like tea and Her Majesty's birthday, they are traditions.

The couple is a bit puzzled over the American tendency to link socialized medicine to a decline in democratic values and "a step toward communism."

"Oh, we don't believe in Communism," says Mrs. Grieg. "No, never. It's just that something has to be done to help poorer people pay their bills. Especially people who are retired, like us."

Environmental problems and runaway inflation likewise beleaguer Britons as they do Americans, say the Griegs.

"Pollution is bad all over England," says Mr. Grieg, "and overpopulation. They're trying to get people to have only two children and there's a good deal of controversy from those who feel people should have as many children as they like.

"And prices are as expensive as here, especially since we entered the Common Market," he says, "they say it will be ten years before we get the good effects of our entry. Now, the price of food goes up and up and wages stay the same."

Although prices are similar in England, says Mrs. Gillis, wages there are about half that of American wages.

Another difference between Britain and America lies in the political system. While American labor groups have consistently been unable to form a major political party, the British Labour Party came to the fore in the early 20th Century and has since gained staunch respectability unlike the aborted American labor parties. The Griegs say they vote the Labour ticket, although they say they think Prime Minister Heath's Conservative government is "doing a good job."

As for the Englishman's proverbial awe over the royalty and peerage, it's conspicuously absent among the Griegs and their daughter.

"Oh yes we grumble a bit over the waste of money on such things," says Mrs. Grieg. "The royalty get a terrific lot of money that might be better spent elsewhere."

Mrs. Gillis agrees that the English society is more class-stratified than the American one, where "you can't distinguish the rich from anybody else."

"Oh, it's all just tradition," remarks Mrs. Grieg. "We've always had a king or queen. They live in London so we don't see them often, but once in a while they come to Ipswich and the town makes quite a to-do. The government really runs the show, but we know she's there," says Mrs. Grieg, speaking of Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Grieg adheres to the tradition of the Highlands in that he owns a Black Watch Regiment kilt made of seven yards of pleated woolen material. He pronounces the wearing of the garment as "lovely."

For Americans that say that the current British governmental scandal is at least more "romantic" than the American Watergate Affair, the Griegs reply that "it's not so romantic for those involved," referring to the high government officials recently accused of illicit relationships with several London call girls.

As to Watergate, Grieg says he thinks that President Richard Nixon "didn't know what was going on.

"There's a certain class of people in America," he says, "that are trying to get him out of office. I think he's a good man. He's trying to bring peace to the world."

Peace means a lot to the Griegs since that ephemeral condition seemed very far off during Britain's darkest hours of World War II. Ipswich suffered daily bombings during the German blitzkrieg, the Griegs said, and a feeling that "this might be the end" was taking hold of a people to whom the droning of air raid sirens was a daily nightmare.

"Those were the days when we drank tea, tea, tea. To calm our nerves, you know," recalls Mrs. Grieg.

A bit of Merry Old England has come to the Panhandle with the visit of Mr. and Mrs. John Grieg of Ipswich, who are staying with their British-born daughter, Mrs. Gil Gillis of Mescalero Park. Although the couple do not bear out many an American's typical view of Britons, the sun never sets without their daily indulgence in the most British of passions—the taking of tea.

Homebound Canyon Housewife Creates Fashions For Dolls

Mrs. H. G. Kennedy acquired her two constant companions — Barbie and Ken — by inheritance from her granddaughters who outgrew their plastic teenage friends.

Now the two Mattel dolls occupy places of honor atop Mrs. Kennedy's sewing basket, nesting above colorful piles of tiny doll fashions ranging from flowered evening gowns to sporting pants suits.

Mrs. Kennedy began sewing doll clothes for her granddaughters 15 years ago. When her designs were admired by their playmates, other little girls requested the clothes.

Now that her husband is homebound due to illness, Mrs. Kennedy never leaves the house anymore, except to go to the grocery store. With only a small, insufficient income from social security, Mrs. Kennedy several years ago resorted to selling doll clothes at $1 an ensemble to supplement the family income.

Since the sewing brings in a tiny but vital source of money for the elderly couple, Mrs. Kennedy was at first hesitant about talking about her handiwork.

"I won't get in trouble for this, will I?" she asked, "A couple of years ago a woman came around here with some forms for me to fill out. Said I was running an industry and would have to be taxed as such.

"Well, I just told her that I do this for my own pleasure, mostly, and to pay for the little things we need. And I don't buy nothin' for it. People give me scraps," she said, pointing to a stack of boxes filled with multi-colored scraps of fabric.

She added that Roland Black, Chamber of Commerce manager, later "cleared up the whole thing" for her.

Lately, Mrs. Kennedy has been losing business due to the fact that her regular customers are "growing up."

Demand for the doll clothes has been low, except during the Christmas season. To tide her over until then, Mrs. Kennedy does a variety of needlework, including crochet beads, handwoven shawls and capes and purses. The knit purses, which are now enjoying a vogue in department stores among the younger set, Mrs. Kennedy sells for $3 apiece.

The making of delicate doll fashions seems especially rewarding to Mrs. Kennedy. She recalls the feeling of satisfaction she enjoyed when a mother called her to say that "you've made three little girls very happy at Christmas."

The work is also ideal for her homebound situation. In the evenings she sits beside her husband in the parlor, surrounded by pictures of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren at all stages of development, and creates the tiny fashions "mostly on my finger.

"Oh, I used to feel bad about not being able to get out, but now I've gotten used to it, and the sewing gives me something to do," she says.

When she first started making the clothes for her granddaughters about 15 years ago, the designs came from her imagination. Now, imagination combines with patterns brought to her by friends and things she sees on television. Through these, she says, she keeps up with the changing fashions.

Children bring her their dolls to sew for, but she keeps the Barbie and Ken "hand-me-ups" in her home, since a variety of dolls have the same lean, angular figure.

"Barbie's awfully cute," she says. "The Ken doll came along after Barbie, but I find the little girls would rather have the girl doll most of all.

"I always like to have the little girls come in and see the clothes on the doll after I've made them. When my little great-granddaughters come to visit, I usually let them pick a few clothes to take with them. And the funny thing is, they don't pick out the things I think are prettiest. They seldom do. Each little girl has her own special taste."

Growing up herself over 50 years ago, Mrs. Kennedy recalls having only one "good" doll — "one of those ones with the china faces," she says. The rest of the time, she used to make a face out of whatever material was available, and stick it on a corn cob.

"And I think we got as much pleasure out of playing with those corncob dolls than these kids today do with their expensive dolls.

"We'd take a shoebox and make our doll beds, and make clothes from scraps. Having to do it ourselves took up more time. We could spend hours with that one doll, while little girls today take a few minutes with them, and then they're up and gone."

Fashions designed with the little girl in mind are Mrs. H.G. Kennedy's specialty. The skilled seamstress is shown above with her two "hand-me-up" dolls, Barbie and Ken, which she "borrowed back" from her two granddaughters after they grew out of the world of dolls and make-believe.

Three Sentenced In Dist. Court

Diana W. Thrasher received a four-year probated sentence from Jordan after pleading guilty to a charge of attempting to obtain a narcotic drug by fraud from an Amarillo drugstore.

A seven-year probated sentence was given David Porter, charged with burglary of a drugstore in Amarillo.

Research Grant Awarded Junior

Maxey D. McKnight Jr., 20, West Texas State University junior from Kress, has been awarded a $600 research scholarship by the Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston.

McKnight recently was notified of acceptance of a scientific article for publication by the Journal of the Chemical Society in London.

Two Postmen To Retire After 66 Years

By ANN MELIN

Of the 571 stops he makes on his route, mail carrier Odell "Luke" Miller says that at some of those stops he's never once dropped the letters in the box, but always handed them through the door with a cheerful "Hello, how are you this morning?"

"Same here," says mailman Hampton Lisle, "Why, there's one lady on my route who'll tell anyone on the phone 'I'll call you back' when I come around. Those visits are that important to her."

Recently, the two carriers delivered their own letters to each home on their routes, informing the occupants of their retirement this month. Miller leaves the Canyon postal service after 30 years of service, and Lisle after 32 years on the job. Both men became carriers about 15 years ago when the service was initiated in the city.

It's not without a certain sense of loss that the two men leave the civil service. Both men say they feel that their grassroots philosophy of "the personal touch" is in decline these days. The last of the Depression-taught school, they say that their hard-learned creeds of "a day's pay for a day's work" and "we got nothing to sell but service" are dying out as carriers become inundated in more mail, more people and more mass mechanization.

On the surface, the progress of postal service in America seems unlimited, they say. When the two carriers began work in the early 40's, each started at 65 cents an hour. Now, starting pay is as high as $3.80 an hour, and includes a wide range of appealing fringe benefits.

Before the post office acquired their Jeep, the men say they used to walk from 12 to 15 miles per day. With the car, their trek has been reduced to eight or ten miles each day.

But service, as defined in the traditional sense, has, if anything, declined, the men say. Work is oriented only to the paycheck among some employees, says Lisle. The tremendous increase in volume of mail, and the consequent mass mechanization to deal with it, has made an automaton of the old-fashioned, smiling mailman with his entourage of heel-snapping puppies and shouting children.

Musing over the situation, the two veteran carriers turn philosophical, attributing the decline in service to a "worldwide change in the times due to psychological and emotional forces." Lisle's analysis is reminiscent of the "future shock" theory abroad among contemporary psychologists and philosophers.

"There's a lack of ability among our young people to be able to foresee the future, to know what's in store for them even within the next five years. When we were young, a fella' could pretty well project what was going to happen to him. Now, if a young man starts college he's faced with the possibility that his education might be worthless due to technological advancement, in four years."

Inability to adjust to a rapidly-changing environment is another source of dislocation in society, the men say.

"Just take the zip code," says Miller, "Now the younger generation don't mind putting it on their letters properly. They generally remember it and get it right. But the older folks might have the code right in front of them and still copy it down wrong, not understanding that if every figure isn't correct, the thing won't work. And with some, you just can't get them to use it," he says.

Delivery of the mails is not as bad as some folks say it is, but worse, in many cases than it should be, says Lisle.

"The other day I saw a letter postmarked the eighth of June that got here on the ninth. But the lady who wrote it had been in the East for the past two weeks. As it was, the letter was written ten days before and not postmarked until the day before it was delivered.

"I've also heard that there's some thievery that goes on around the air ports," adds Lisle.

Although the two carriers can't recite the mailman's version of the doctor's Hippocratic oath — that one about "through rain, through snow, through driving rain . . .," each man says he's missed only two days due to impossible weather conditions. And on those days, there wasn't much mail to deliver, since the mail trucks couldn't even make it to the post office.

Lisle recalls that the worse conditions he's worked under were in 1956, one day when the temperature toppled to eight above zero and the wind raged at 40 miles per hour with the snow coming down hard.

Such salubrious pastimes as golfing and jogging aren't the mailmen's bags, they say. They've walked enough at the end of the day, Lisle says. And they are among the few who do much of any walking nowadays.

"These young folks hardly do any walking," Lisle says, "kills 'em to death to think about it."

Lisle says he wouldn't exactly say people ought to walk more, but he knows that they're gonna be, referring to the critical fuel shortage.

"We grew up in a different school than these young people. In our day 12 cents for gasoline and 15 cents for admission to the swimming pool made for our Sunday afternoon entertainment," Lisle says.

"Now there's gadgets for everything, and everybody keeps busy fixing their gadgets. I remember when everybody used to use a push mower, and now you couldn't get anyone to mow their lawn with those things.

"I don't know, Hampton," says his fellow worker, "there's a lady about 90 years old on my route that still uses one — herself."

"Oh, I use all the conveniences myself," says Lisle, "I'm bogged down in the same rat race. We call it Progress. Well, maybe it is, but there's been some bad psychological effects from it.

"Go back through history all you want," says Lisle, "and the same thing is true. Man never has done well in times of affluence. Go back to Egypt, go back to Rome or Greece, and it's the same. With Progress comes a loss of values.

"Everybody ought to have a sense of values," says Lisle. "Mine's always been that 'all's you're gonna take with you is what you do for someone else."

"A day's pay for a day's work" has been the philosophy of mail carriers Hampton Lisle (left) and Luke Miller, who are retiring after 32 and 30 years respectively with the Canyon Post Office. Both men plan to "do the things we've always wanted to do and never had time to." Perhaps one of those things, for Lisle at least, is to catch up on a little shut-eye — well deserved after over 30 years of waking up with birds each day and walking from eight to 15 miles on his route.

G. Donnells Have Girl

Today, Mrs Baird's Bread is still delivered to the store as soon as possible after each bake... because her family still cares about freshness.

You are invited . . . to good times, good food

. . . in your own backyard with an outdoor gas grill and gas light. You can cook up a party at a moment's notice, because a gas grill is ready to cook in minutes. And it's so easy to cook on because you can control the heat. With a gas grill there's no charcoal mess, and you still get that delicious, outdoor char-broiled flavor that comes from the smoke of meat juices dripping on permanent ceramic briquets.

Besides the good times you'll have cooking out, you enjoy the convenience of having a gas grill. You'll probably find yourself cooking on it just because you wanted to get out of the kitchen or didn't want to mess up the broiler of your kitchen range.

WT Prof Says -

OSHA Benefits Worker And Boss

The acronym "OSHA" has caused panic in some industries, and only mild concern in others but it affects or will affect businesses at virtually every level.

One Amarillo industry, for example, had the unpleasant experience of being told by a federal OSHA inspector that 55 violations of the Occupational Safety and Health Act were found in his plant.

"That could mean as little as nothing and as much as $55,000 per day," Dr. Wallace Johnston, Canyon professor at West Texas State University who was recently certified as an instructor in the act, said.

Johnston, head of the industrial education department at the university, and Donald Envick, also of the department, gave an OSHA appreciation seminar this week in Amarillo.

The act, which went into effect in 1970, outlines in specific detail the requirements industry and business must meet in providing safe and healthy environments for their workers.

Johnston said although the federal inspectors employed to implement the requirements of the act are few in number, they concentrate their efforts primarily on industries. They can, however, inspect small businesses, also.

The OSHA act spells out the standards industry and business are to meet and the inspector checks each industry to ensure it is meeting those standards.

If it is not, the penalty can be great.

For example, Johnston said, the OSHA inspector will grade violations according to their severity or their danger. The more dangerous violations will naturally carry a heavier fine if not corrected.

The OSHA inspector may, in fact, require a firm owner to correct a violation on the spot. Failure to comply can mean the business will be closed down by a judge's order.

For the small businessman, the standards are just as stringent as they are for the large firm or industry.

Standards relating to adequate lighting, fire extinguishers, use of electronic equipment and the existence of fire hazards are listed in the OSHA act and can be checked by an inspector.

Currently, Johnston said, inspectors seem to be concentrating their efforts on construction firms.

He noted, though, that an inspection can be initiated by someone other than the inspector. An employee or a member of his family can ask for an inspection if they feel working conditions are unsafe or dangerous.

Johnston said all businessmen should become acquainted with the law pertaining to the OSHA act.

Reminded of the heated debate which surrounded the OSHA passage, Johnston said many standards outlined in the act were already in effect in other laws.

He said he feels the act, rather than being a purposeful harm to industry and business, will benefit the employer and the employee.

Noting that 14,000 persons were killed or injured in industrial accidents last year, Johnston said the act "is simply to help businessmen."

Lutheran Church Sets Bible School

St. Paul Lutheran Church, 2600 4th Ave., has scheduled Vacation Bible School for July 18 through July 28.

The weekday sessions will be held from 9-11:45 a.m. and will include children ranging in age from three years through junior high school.

This year's theme is "Tell the News—Share the Love" and will develop the concept of telling of God's love and acting out that love in the lives of Christians.

Rides will be furnished for those who need them. Persons interested may call 655-4002 or 655-4086 for ride information.

The program will include Bible and topic study, music, and handicrafts. The week of activities will close with a picnic to be held at noon, July 28, at Conner Park and a Family Night program at 7:30 p.m. on the same night.

Superintendent of the school is Mrs. Gwynn Tucek. The teaching staff includes Mesdames Michael Meriage, Allan Oltjen, Peter Petersen, George Loudder, Kenneth Elder and the Rev. David Melber. Teaching assistants are Mesdames Rodney Kuhlman, Randy Harrison, Robert Tucek, Michael Dixon, Glenn Tucek, Misses Marilyn Robinson, Rhonda Tucek, and Rod Kuhlman.

Music director for the Vacation Bible School is Mrs. Pat Sullivan. In charge of refreshments are Mrs. David Tucek and Mrs. Adelheid Albers. Babysitter is Mrs. David Melber and bus driver is Rod Kuhlman.

Children of the community are cordially invited to share in the Bible School activities.

The music and merriment of Paul Green's musical drama, "TEXAS" will be in the air when the show opens Thursday, June 21 in the Pioneer Amphitheatre at Palo Duro Canyon State Park. Helping to capture some of the excitement will be the show's salute to the Panhandle farmer's best friend, the windmill. Paintings, drawings, photographs and three-dimensional designs of windmills, large and small, will be exhibited, with awards going to the top works.

WT Pre-Freshman Orientation Termed Success By Cates

West Texas State University's first attempt at providing orientation, academic counselling and enrollment for freshman students during summer months was tentatively termed a success.

Dr. Donald Cates, registrar and dean of admissions, said the Tuesday freshman day-long session "went great."

More than 100 students and more than two dozen parents came to the Canyon campus Tuesday morning for the freshman orientation visit. Cates says that about half the entering freshman class for the fall term will visit WTSU during Tuesday's and two other similar sessions set later this summer.

"We heard some real fine comments from the parents and students both," Cates said.

He told of one mother who initially was worried about sending her daughter to a university far from their home. After Tuesday's visit, the mother was convinced.

"She said she's sure glad her daughter picked West Texas," Cates said.

The students spent a portion of Tuesday receiving information about the university in general — everything from fraternities and sororities to dormitory life. Another portion of the day was spent with representatives of WTSU departments discussing academic majors.

During a final session Tuesday, the students were allowed to complete registration for the fall term. They will later this summer be billed for registration and related fees.

More than 400 freshmen are expected to attend the sessions this summer, an innovation for West Texas.

hands of Lair he will see his dream of a vast development in the area come to reality.

"Our development was patterned after—and maybe its about 15 years ahead—but we could see Hunsley Hills should become for us what Highland Park is in Dallas and River Oaks is in Houston," he said.

Lair commended Hunsley for developing the Hunsley Hills area and said "people in the Canyon area realize we owe a debt of gratitude to him for keeping this area clear of strip-type development."

Lair said the transaction should be finalized between July 1 and 15, and his development plans will begin immediately.

The purchase of Hunsley Hills was the third major land deal made by Lair in recent months. He recently sold for about $7 million a large tract of land in Dallam County to Winrock Farms, owned by Winthrop Rockefeller.

More recently, he acquired more than 20 sections of land north of Amarillo and is busy developing what is now known as Valle De Oro there.

Highway Project Okayed In Counties

The Texas Highway Commission has approved a project to reconstruct grading, structures and surfacing on a section of FM 408 in Randall and Potter counties.

The project, requested by the City of Amarillo, extends from I-40 south to 300 feet south of West 45th St. in Amarillo, a distance of about 2 miles. Estimated cost is $337,000.

Permit Deadline On Signs Set

Owners of signs along Interstate 27 and U.S. 60 and outside the Canyon city limits face a June 30 deadline to apply for a permit and license for the signs.

The Texas Highway Beautification Act, in effect since June 1972, requires owners of signs which are within 660 feet of interstate or federal-aid primary highways and are visible from main traffic lanes to file permit requests with the district offices of the Texas Highway Department, a spokesman said.

Permits cost $5 each.

Before permits can be approved, the spokesman said, sign owners must obtain a $25 state license and post $2500 bond for each county in which they have a sign. Maximum bonds of $10,000 are required of owners with signs in more than three counties.

Signs advertising the sale or lease of property upon which they are located or related solely to activities conducted on the property are exempted by the act along with underground utility markers, signs erected for official purposes by Federal, state and local governmental units, and, in some cases, those posted by churches and nonprofit service organizations.

Permits should be requested from the Texas Highway Department District Office, P.O. Box 2708, Amarillo, Texas, 79105.

Canyon Pianist Wins Scholarship

A 1973 Canyon High School graduate was recently awarded the Paderewski Memorial Medal and Scholarship from the National Piano Guild for her high achievement in piano performance.

Sheryl Bellah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bellah, received a $100 scholarship to the college of her choice, as well as a senior diploma and pin from the Guild, of which she has been a national and international member for ten years.

The young pianist, who plans to major in music therapy in college, also recently received a I rating in her vocal and piano solos at the Greater Southwest Music Festival, where she was cited as outstanding pianist for the festival.

Another Student To Roundball Camp

Cindy Craig of Canyon, a junior high school student, has been accepted for the Ranger Junior College basketball camp which begins Sunday.

Miss Craig joins several other Canyon girls at the camp, which will be coached by coaches from throughout the state, including Bob Schneider, CHS girls basketball coach.

Eight Indicted By Grand Jury

Eight persons were indicted Monday by the Randall County grand jury on charges ranging from driving while intoxicated to burglary.

Roy L. Phillips of Amarillo was indicted on a charge of burglary in connection with the alleged burglary of a private residence in Amarillo. Randall County Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said sheriff's deputies have learned that Phillips is wanted in Alabama on a charge of assault with intent to rape and armed robbery.

Theron Whittington of Amarillo was indicted on a charge of enticing a child for the purpose of committing an aggravated assault. Dowlen said the charge resulted from an alleged incident involving two young girls.

Danny Pershall of Amarillo was indicted on a charge of burglary of a motor vehicle.

Lincoln Paul Flores of Amarillo was indicted on a charge of burglary of a service station on South Washington in Amarillo.

Craft Lofland was indicted on a charge of obtaining narcotic drugs by means of a forged prescription. Dowlen said he is charged with obtaining an opiate from an Amarillo drugstore with a forged prescription.

Gene Howe News

Welcome To New Maynard Baby

By TROYCE MULHERIN

Vacation(?) Greetings:

SOME WERE THINKING pink. Some were thinking blue. We got one of each. Not really "we," but the proud parents are glad to share the good news with us! Gene Howe's speech therapist, Marilyn Maynard, retired from such duties several months ago with the express intention of adding to the family census. The count for the Maynard family is now four—proud daddy by the name of Ken; one happy mother (Marilyn); one overjoyed young lady by the name of Wendy; and one newcomer by the name of Scott Eric Maynard.

SCOTT WAS BORN May 17th at High Plains in Amarillo. He weighed in at six pounds, ten ounces, and was eighteen and one-half inches tall. Mom and dad think Scott will be sporting blond hair to compliment his blue eyes. Scott's sister Wendy, a helpful seven year old, is quite taken with her brother. It was difficult for Wendy to learn that it is quite normal and natural for babies to cry. For a while there, everytime Scott cried, Wendy would get great big tears in her eyes; and, there was some fast explaining going on around the Maynard home. But, now Wendy knows that Scott is not "hurt" or "hurting," and all the Maynards are enjoying this new Maynard tremendously! Congratulations all around!

IN THE MEANTIME Elizabeth and Lewis Meers were thinking pink! Elizabeth, Gene Howe's P.E. teacher, had also retired several months ago in order to have a family. Such family is named Ginger Elizabeth Meers. Ginger was born June 6th in Canyon, weighing in at six pounds, fifteen ounces and being twenty and one-fourth inches long. Elizabeth relates that Ginger has lots of dark brown hair and dark eyes. (Ginger had only to blink those dark eyes once to capture her daddy's heart!) This is the first baby for the Meers, and needless to say, they are walking on air. A whole new world! We are so happy to have this little darling in our midst—welcome.

BASEBALL FANS NEED to note this change in the coaching staffs at Gene Howe. Euris Phipps will be coaching the third and fourth grade girls team. Everybody else stays the same. Gene Howe's fourth grade girls (coached by George Schmidt) won their game over Western Plateau last week with a score of 17-4. Shelley Shank and Carla Schmidt were homerun hitters. You other teams might want to call your game results in, with the names of homerun people, to let everyone know how the team is doing. 352-6053

SHERRYE MAYFIELD ENJOYED a family-type birthday party on the 5th when she became twelve years old. She received a rather unusual present tho. A paddle. A paddle which was put to use. Mindy and Missey Davis decided this would be a fun-type present and made same for Sherrye. They brought the "present" to Sherrye's, and everyone lined up and tried it out, including her baseball team mates. A very happy to this young lady with the marvelous sense of humor!

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY WISHES to Mr. and Mrs. Luther Lawless, who marked up one year of happiness on June 9th. Brenda and Luther noted the occasion with "dinner out." Updating Brenda's activities—she is recovering from her recent illness; passed her classes at Amarillo College with excellent grades; and, has gone to work at Pantex! Talk about busy.

EVERYONE AT THE Johnny Hicks' homestead is "in the swim of things." And, this is how they marked daughter Karol's fourteenth birthday—swimming and cooking out. (You might not recognize Karol the next time you see her—she has new green eyes!) By virtue of contact lens, mind you, her birthday present. Karol also marked her day with a visit to her grandparents in Plainview. Mr. and Mrs. William Sorelle really treated Karol (spoiled her in other words), what with eating out and letting her enjoy herself for several days. May this "green-eyed" lass have many more happies!

GLENNA SCHMIDT PLAYED birthday girl on the 10th of June. She particularly enjoyed the goodies presented by her children, including a box of candy that the baseball league in Canyon was selling. Just so happens that son Steve was one of the top ten salesmen and received a real nice baseball glove for his efforts.

RONNIE AND JACKIE Mayfield, and all the youngsters, have returned from a family reunion in Grady, New Mexico. Forty-four clan members gathered together to eat, eat, eat, and to exchange family news. Ronnie's mom and dad, Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Mayfield, hosted the event.

THERE WAS A ten-speed bike in store for Danny Sellers for his fourteenth birthday present, and he happily acknowledged receipt of same on the 10th. The Sellers are really enjoying their house guests this summer. Such guests being Dal and Robin Polson from Anaco, Venezuela. The Polsons have been in Venezuela for the past two years. Dickie Polson, Gwyn's brother, is a sales engineer with the Dowel Company, and brought his family home to the States so everyone could re-introduce themselves.

THE YOUNGSTERS GREATLY missed hotdogs and hamburgers, and have been playing catch-up at every opportunity. Dal is really getting in the swing of things here, playing baseball with his cousin Steve's Y team (which team Wes Bromley is coaching). Swimming, bowling and like summer pastimes are also on Dal's list of important things to do.

SIX-YEAR OLD Robin is leading a somewhat more leisure life during her visit with Aunt Gwyn and Uncle Edgar. She is completely captivated with the cartoons on the television. Yes, there is television in Venezuela; yes, there are cartoons on the telly there. But, and here's the catch, it's all in Spanish. Young Robin not being adequately fluent with the language and all, it is rather difficult to keep up with the audio portion of the program. Anyway, she is extremely pleased to be occupied you-know-where when the you-know-whats are on. Robin's and Dal's mom and dad will be joining them soon, and the Polsons will be staying with the Sellers until the last of July.

BELATED NEWS: THESE announcements were made the last day of school, but sometimes it takes a while to decipher the old shorthand notes. The fifth grade rooms at Gene Howe were designated as the All-Around Music Class. A trophy inscribed with such fact has found a permanent home in the trophy case at the school. Each fifth grade room was presented with a framed purple ribbon, which ribbon will remain in its very own fifth grade class from now until. The sight reading award was presented to the third grade classes. These youngsters worked hard and earned this honor. Each of the third grade students were given a certificate in recognition of their achievements in sight reading.

SUNDAY, JUNE 10th was a lovely day for Marla Phillips. She and Mike Shadix were united in marriage in a beautiful ceremony at the South Georgia Baptist Church. Marla is the daughter of Bill and Margie Phillips, and Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buford Shadix of Canyon. Marla's five attendants wore yellow voile dresses and carried baskets of yellow and white daisies. Wedding colors were yellow and white, and same were carried out in the flowers adorning the aisle and on the serving table. The reception was held at the church following the ceremony. One particularly touching and memorable portion of the ceremony was when Marla sang a song to Mike, which song was taken from the scripture found in the Book of Ruth.

UPON RETURNING FROM a trip to Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Shadix will take up residency in their home on property located at the Amarillo Country Club. Mike is the assistant golf pro at the club, and Marla will continue her part time employment at Orkin. The couple plan to attend West Texas State University in the fall. Very best wishes are extended to this fine young couple!

JANE AND DICK Ives, who recently moved to Dallas from the Gene Howe area, drove down for the wedding. Margie Phillips said the baby is growing so fast, and that the boys are as sweet as ever.

GAY COCHRAN TOOK a few days off from her summer school teaching duties in order to join hubby Howard for an engineering conference in Nacodoches. Howard left earlier in the week to take the youngsters to visit with Gay's aunt in Fort Worth, and then went on to the conference. Gay flew to Shreveport midweek, and then joined Howard. Whilst Howard was attending the various meetings and business sessions, Gay played bridge. After all, it was his conference, so she should get to play. Right? Right! The Cochrans did manage to have nice lunches and very nice dinners together. On to Fort Worth to visit for a few days, and to pick up the children before coming back to Big A for the daily replays.

THE GIRLS' TEAM being coached by Euris Phipps (third and fourth graders), won their very first game. Cindy Nuzum helped the 26-8 score with her homerun. They were playing Bivins School, and this was the very first time for many of these girls to be playing ball. Congratulations on your first win, one of many more to come!

THE FIFTH AND sixth grade boys being coached by Glen Walker racked up quite a score in their win over Bivins. Jim Phipps hit three homeruns (one of which was a grandslam), and Ty Casper contributed a homer to the final score of 35-21. Keep up the good work, men.

LET'S HONOR (AND maybe even obey) big daddy on his Day! Take good care of him.

THANKS FOR THE use of the hall.

A good babysitter needs a lot more than a way with kids

Of course a babysitter should like children. And like taking care of them. But the job also involves some pretty big responsibilities.

Caring for little ones means being able to handle just about any emergency. Because emergencies often require the use of the telephone, a handy list of important numbers can do wonders for your sitter's confidence.

So write down the phone numbers for fire, police, medical assistance and the places you'll be while out. Keep the list right next to the phone, and remember to call home if your plans change.

Interested in getting more for your telephone dollar? We'll send 30 tips to help you save time and money. No charge. We'll also include an Emergency Numbers List.

This young little leaguer swung at a low ball and got a base hit Tuesday night during continued baseball action in Canyon. Team schedules are going full steam for the almost 20 local teams.

Prof Prefers Rodeo Box To Ivory Tower

A rodeo announcer makes or breaks a rodeo.

He provides the color, the excitement and the momentum for the event that makes it enjoyable for spectators.

Dr. Charles "Bud" Townsend, associate professor of history at West Texas State University in Canyon, has been a sanctioned RCA rodeo announcer for 26 years.

Born in Nocona, Texas, Townsend grew up in a ranching community and learned to ride and rope much like kids in New York grow up playing baseball in the streets.

"We did what was natural in our environment and that was riding and roping, so naturally, we began to ride in rodeos," the veteran said.

"I rode around and developed a bit of skill when I was first involved," he recalls as he leans back in his chair surrounded by shelves of history books in his university office. "I never did feel I was very good — most people can always tell you they were good — but I enjoyed it."

Townsend's first experience with the announcing part of the rodeo life came unexpectedly in 1946.

Townsend's father died when he was eight, and he can remember his oldest brother, who was a mathematics professor at the University of Texas at the time, taking over as the head of the family to help support the other children.

"My mother told my brother she wished he'd make me quit riding. So on Labor Day in 1946, the announcer didn't show up, and he told me I couldn't ride," Townsend said. "The rodeo officials said, 'What are we going to do now?' and someone said, 'Get Bud to do it.' "

Throughout the years he had been rodeoing, Townsend had become known to his area colleagues as a great mimic of rodeo announcers.

"I got up fool-like and kid-like that day. No one but a kid or a fool would try such a thing, but I thoroughly enjoyed myself and I've been announcing ever since."

This will be the 28th season Townsend has announced since his abrupt initiation on that Labor Day. Since then, the announcer has gone through the trials of learning to speak over an old crystal microphone and turning from amateur standing to joining up with the RCA in 1948.

"I went to Ft. Worth and joined the RCA for $10, and I knew that this would really make it or break it, because I had not been good enough for the professionals before. You can't go back to the amateurs. If you did, the RCA would suspend you, or the old ward would blacklist you," he said.

The young rodeoer graduated from high school the same year he gained professional announcer status. For six years he traveled the rodeo circuit booking his own jobs from state to state.

In 1955, Townsend decided to go to college. "I knew that if I did it would help me. It would help me with grammar and various things that would help my announcing."

Townsend didn't really know what route to take in college but became interested in history, because it dealt with people. It dealt with humans just like the humans he was dealing with at rodeos. The scholar-announcer was awarded a fellowship to do graduate work.

"I still wasn't going to be a history teacher. I just thought 'when I get the Master's I'll quit' and then I applied back East for graduate school."

Through a span of about 13 years, Townsend acquired three degrees. He earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from Midwestern University, his Master of Arts from Baylor University and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. During all the years he was in school, he used rodeo announcing to finance his education.

"I had a family by that time and well, I could get and make several thousand in the summer, pay off my bankers and borrow more for the next year and that's the way I went through."

Townsend intended to quit the rodeo business after he acquired his Ph.D., but during a discussion with his older brother, decided it was in his best interest and the interests of his students to continue his summer rodeoing.

"I wouldn't quit if I were you," his brother said. "If I had something to do where I could get away from the college in the summer, I think I'd be a better teacher when I came back."

Townsend tried teaching two years without working the circuit in the summers and found that he was tired of school in May.

"I went out to the rodeos again. It was a different life, and I enjoyed it, but by August, I wanted to come back to my students. I think it makes a better teacher out of you. It seems to keep me with a common touch. Where you're communicating with these people, and you're communicating with all kinds of people all year — you learn that you have to always speak in a way that communicates. You can't become academic," he said.

During the rodeo season, Townsend had much leisure time between his performances. He would use this time to study, write and relax. One summer he completed his French reading and during another he polished his dissertation for his doctorate degree.

Also, during the summers, Townsend used his historical education coupled with his knowledge of music to research and write "San Antonio Rose, the Life and Music of Bob Wills," as yet unpublished.

Among the history professor's many hobbies are music and fishing. He teaches a course at the university in the history of American music for the last half of his history survey course.

"I take all kinds of music, serious music or classical, Broadway, popular, protest, anti-protest, country and western, rock, jazz; in particular, swing — and play them to the students. I then make historical comments to try to teach history from another point of view. I think it's very fruitful," he said.

This summer, Townsend has not scheduled a full load of rodeo calling so he can pursue his love of fishing.

"I do my booking through an agent now," he says. "Most of the rodeos I do are in Colorado instead of all over the country.

After all, if you spend most of your time driving, you don't have time to fish."

The rodeo has helped Townsend understand history while at the same time, history has helped him understand the traditions and culture behind the rodeo.

"Rodeoing is, in a way, making history yourself. You're not just a spectator and a reporter. Historians often are just spectators and reporters, but here you are making history. You're out where it's going on, where it's happening. I meet a lot of wonderful people. This summer will be 13 years I've been down to Gunnison. Those ranchers that put on the shows, I've seen their children grow up and seen them get married. We've made a lot of friends. It's hard to quit and not go back."

A new student at West Texas State University, the girl in the center came from Iowa to attend WTSU. She brought her parents with her Tuesday as she went through the new orientation, counseling, registration session on the campus. More than 100 students participated in the pre-fall enrollment day.

Census Survey Will Eye Births

Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey in Canyon and other areas of the nation beginning Monday on the birth expectations in an effort to determine if the birth rate will continue its recent downward trend.

A bureau spokesman said census interviewers will ask wives how many children they expect to have within the next five years. The responses will indicate future growth and composition of the nation's population.

Householders in the sample will also be asked about benefits from various government and private programs. Answers to these questions will be used to evaluate the effect of such income on the economy of the country.

The questions are in addition to the usual questions asked in the monthly survey on employment conducted by the census bureau for the Department of Labor.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation. The April survey showed that employment, at 83.9 million seasonably adjusted, was little changed from March. Unemployment remained unchanged at 5.0 per cent, but was substantially below the 5.8 per cent of April 1972.

All information about individuals and families provided the census bureau is held confidential under the law and can be published only as statistical totals.

Lifesaving Offered

The Canyon Summer Recreation Program will conduct junior and senior Red Cross lifesaving courses scheduled June 18-22 and June 25-29 in the West Texas State University Swimming Pool.

Classes will be conducted from 2:30 to 3:45 p.m. each day. A pool fee will be charged upon enrollment, said Dr. A. J. Luquette, director of the Canyon Summer Recreation Program.

Red Cross stipulations require that those enrolling in junior lifesaving classes be 11-14 years of age and be able to swim.

Eligible to enroll in senior classes are persons 15 years and over who have completed the ninth grade and who know how to swim, said Dr. Luquette.

Red Cross lifesaving badges will be awarded to all persons successfully completing the courses, he said.

Dr. Luquette said that he hoped to get at least 10 persons to enroll in order to conduct the course. Interested persons are asked to call Butch Moore at City Hall.

No Word Yet On Meeting About Lab

West Texas State University agriculture officials had yet to meet at mid-week with officials from Texas A&M on further discussions about a proposed A&M large animal diagnostic laboratory location.

Dr. Charles Smallwood, dean of the school of agriculture at WTSU, said he has not yet been informed about when local officials will meet with A&M officials about how and when a site for the lab will be selected.

Smallwood told chamber of commerce directors last week he expected the meeting to be scheduled soon. WTSU officials are preparing a site proposal for A&M to have the lab located on the local university's campus.

A bill passed by the state legislature recently provides for establishment of the lab and funding on a location in either Potter or Randall counties. An earlier bill provided the lab be located on the WTSU campus.

STEVE AND I took our children up to the New Mexico mountains for several days. My brother has a cabin at Ute Park near Cimarron, New Mexico and we visited with his family. We just relaxed, played golf and bridge, rode horses and generally had a good time. There is something about not having a schedule to face that is just delicious. We still got up before 7:30 every morning, but not to get kids off to school or a husband off to work.

CANYON REPRESENTATIVES ATTENDING the Regional Conference of the American Cancer Society in Lubbock last Tuesday were Allene Stovall, Paige Carruth and Hap McAtee. Allene, the president of the Canyon unit, said the session was a productive and educational one. They picked many pointers on how to make our Canyon unit more efficient and productive.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DEAN Cobb of Dumas might have lost a vote the other day. Last weekend my father, Jesse Bennett of Dalhart, was playing in the Dumas Invitational Golf Tournament. He had taken his new golf cart with the plexiglass windshield over for the tournament. Dean Cobb teed-off on the No. 8 tee-box with my father in the fairway. His golf ball went through the windshield and hit daddy's mouth, requiring several stitches. I hope that Dean's legislative ability is better than his golf etiquette. I guess he thought that if Spiro could do it so could he. My father still played 18 holes after being hit. It takes a lot more than that to get him off the golf course as my mother well knows.

WELL, THAT IS all for now. I hope all of you are enjoying your vacation as much as I am. I had two whole weeks between the end of school until Vacation Bible School and swimming lessons began. If you have any news please call me at 655-9978.

Hos Gives Tourist Helps

His name is Hos P. Tality and his job is to tell those persons in Canyon who come into contact with tourists how to make the tourists feel welcome and want to stay here.

Hos is a cartoon character featured in a Texas Highway Department slide show now available to Canyon merchants who need an aid in telling their employees how to deal with tourists in the most effective manner.

The slide show is available for presentations through the Canyon Chamber of Commerce.

"Every person in Canyon is an ambassador to every visitor we meet," Hos says in the slide show. "Each of us has a real responsibility to make every visitor feel welcome and wanted in Canyon."

Hos's opposite in the slide show is his cousin, Raunchy.

"There's a heart of gold behind those scruffy looks," Hos says of his cousin. "Only trouble is our visitors don't know that. All they see is that dirty shirt and smelly cigar and that's what they'll remember. If Raunchy is their one chance to meet a Canyon citizen, that's what they'll remember about Canyon."

Hos has other advice for those who meet tourists.

"Take the initiative to make them welcome — don't wait for them to make the first move. Give them a friendly 'Hello,' 'Hi,' 'Howdy,' or just plain 'Good Morning.' "

Hos says it's the man in the gas station or the waitress in a restaurant who often is a tourists' only contact with Canyon and they should be versed in what activities there are to see and do in and around the city.

Canyon, Hos notes, is fortunate to have many attractions any tourist would like to see — Buffalo Lake, Palo Duro Canyon, "TEXAS," the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum and West Texas State University.

But, the tourist must be told about those sights before he can see them.

Hos advises that those who come into contact with tourists should make an effort to determine just through observation what types of recreation they might be interested in. If for example, a family is obviously prepared for outdoor type recreation, they might not be too interested in a museum.

Hos noted that a good idea for those who meet tourists is to listen.

"Don't be critical of his pronunciation of our local names. Remember we'd have trouble pronouncing strange names from his area. Don't laugh at his pronunciation and don't call attention to minor pronunciation mistakes — no one likes to be criticized."

After a tourist has stayed in Canyon, Hos says, it's a good idea to tell them of one or two cities in Texas they might like to visit on their way home.

Sixteen Canyon students began Monday working for various local employers under a federally-funded six-week job program.

More than 40 applications were made for jobs under the program, which provides employment for disadvantaged youths, Vietnam-era veterans, and youths on summer vacation during the summer.

The county judge's office is handling the program in the county.

Those employed under the program and their places of employment include Stephen Ranne and Jeff Price, City of Canyon; Lynn Whitten, Cruz Luna and Nick Martinez, Canyon junior high; Roy Luna, WTSU security office; Roy Beghtel, federal housing project; Arlene Koch, Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum; Pat Shoulders, Karen Green, Mike McCandless, and Lynn Vaughan, summer recreation program; Tara Wooten and Mark Nelson, soil conservation service; and Mike McBroom and Eric Murrell, Panhandle Heritage Foundation.

Canyon Actress In Summer Role

Rosellen Parker Pearson, daughter of Mrs. W. E. Parker of Canyon, is working in repertory this summer at the Red Barn Theatre in Saugatuck, Michigan.

Work in the theatre will go toward a master's degree in drama education.

A 1965 graduate of Canyon High School, Mrs. Pearson won accolades for her work in drama there, including the UIL "Best Actress Award" in state competition for her role as Desdemona in "Othello." She also portrayed Ophelia in "Hamlet," a part that won an award in area UIL competition, as well as the title role in "Hecuba."

Mrs. Pearson holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Portuguese from the University of Texas. She has also studied at La Sorbonne and American College of Paris, Tulane University, West Texas State University and the University of Portugal. She attended most of the institutions on scholarships.

News Brief

A Canyon man, John Charles Plaster, received a bachelor of arts degree recently during commencement exercises at Rice University in Houston.

Plaster, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Plaster, was one of 640 students to receive a bachelor's degree.

Two From Happy Win State 4-H Award

By MARY NEAL HENRY

LISA PAYNE AND Kim McCaslin won the State 4-H demonstrations in horticulture with their demonstration of Iris. They were in Bryan last week for the State 4-H Roundup. Congratulations, Lisa and Kim! Lisa and Kim were the youngest at 4-H State Roundup and won competing with seventeen demonstrations on horticulture.

THE JAYCEES AND Jaycee-Ettes' summer program for children in Happy is in full swing. Albert Null, Duane Walker, and Jim Hand are coaching the Happy Braves. Their team includes Chuck and Rod Walker, Lonnie and Dewayne Tucek, Greg Hampton, Vincent Ray Venhaus, Ronnie Harvey, Monty Johnson, Raphe Shipman, Luther Vandergriff, Tommy Null, Bill Cope and Hol Toles.

THE HAPPY CHIEFS are coached by Stan and Charles Morrison and Lloyd Venhaus and Jim Whitlow. This team includes Mark Tackitt, Vance Morrison, Scott Morrison, J.D. Phillips, Doug Sims, Scott Railsback, Bobby Strohmeyer, Doug Peterson, Tim Rice, Billy Ray Garcia and James Moore.

CHIEFS BEAT THE Braves 10 to 9 in their opening game last week. The Chiefs were 9 to 0 until the fourth inning and the Braves tied the game by the sixth. It remained tied until the ninth, when the Chiefs brought in one more run. Then Friday the Chiefs beat the Nazareth Yanks 18 to 6. The Braves lost to the Nazareth Astros 17 to 14.

HAPPY JAYCEE-ETTES are sponsoring girl's softball. The younger girls have two teams, Knockouts and Bumble Bees. The Knockouts are Lega Grubb, Teri Patching, Shay Freeman, Gennie Jackson, Shann McCarley, Jeanne Parker, Joanna Hurst, Kelly Weavers, Patti Luker, Cari Greenfield, Vickie Jones, Angelique Henry and Shelley Peterson. Their coaches are LaVenna Jackson, Kelly Hurst, and Joy Freeman. The Bumble Bees are Tisha Selvidge, Connie and Vickie and Carry Venhaus, Kay Lynn Stubblefield, Vanessa and Evelyn Malone, Marcus Vermeire, Kelly Malone, Roceila Vandergriff, Theresa Davis, LaRae Sims, Angela Parker, and Molly Parker. The Bumble Bees are coached by Traverne Vermeire, and Donna Bryan.

THE KNOCKOUTS BEAT the Bumble Bees in their first encounter by a score of 10 to 6. Then the Knockouts won one game over Canyon and lost the next. I enjoyed visiting with Edith Priddy meeting her daughter, Eva Dee, who played on the opposing (and winning) team. I also met Dr. and Mrs. Cooper, who had come to help transport the Canyon team and support them. Their daughter played first base. This team was coached by Johnny McBroom's daughter and the Killingsworth who played on the All-Star basketball game. Forgive me for forgetting first names, but I remember well who they were.

THE OLDER SOFTBALL girls team is the Kickers, coached by Marcella Shaw and Connie Johnson. Their team is Lisa Johnson, Bonnie Briscoe, Marta Donnell, Dayna Venhaus, Nancy White, Rhnea Selvidge, Laura Fellers, Carla Venhaus, Diane Johnson, Connie Hand, Vickie Hamblen, Brenda Penn, Beverly Wilhelm, Terry Peterson, Nancy Woods, Andy Payne and Lisa Payne. They beat Canyon's #3 team in Canyon on Monday, 15 to 10. Lisa Johnson, Nancy White and Andy Payne hit home runs.

GIRLS SOFTBALL LASTS only for the month of June. Susan Rahlfs is chairman of this project.

HAPPY COWBELLES WERE on TV on Thursday at noon and again on the Farm and Home Show on Saturday at noon. Vivian Woods and Othella McGehee talked about "Beef for Father's Day" and so did the area CowBelles on Saturday. Seven of twelve Texas clubs were present. Novalene Toles prepared her beef recipe that took her to the finals of the Beef Cook Off Contest in Austin last month and told about the contest and the thrill of having participated. She prepared the liver surrounded by rice and fruit and served it with a tossed salad and bread, all that was needed to complete her menu. A centerpiece of daisies complimented her menu. And Novalene was really pretty on television!

"BEEF FOR FATHER'S Day" is a project that is 20 years old in America. Since Texas organized CowBelles only last fall, this is Texas' first year to really be exposed to this project, but the majority of American States have observed this tradition for 20 years. Treat dad as if he were a real king and serve him the very best for Father's Day. Serve him BEEF.

OTHELLA McGEHEE, STATE Beef for Father's Day chairman was supposed to present a huge roast beef to Governor Dolph Briscoe this week, but he was unable to work the occasion into his schedule.

HAPPY JAYCEE-ETTES Miss Happy Contest is June 22. This year the event will be emceed by Kenneth Wyatt, noted western artist and humorist. Happy Jaycees will provide the entertainment by presenting a style show (of latest women's fashions or something. It may be hard to identify). The contest will be divided into three categories, ages 5 through 9, 10 through 13 and 14 through 18. Happy contestants call Skip Simons at 764-2163 or Della Venhaus at 749-2971 or 749-3191.

HOL TOLES ALSO went to Glorietta with that Happy Baptist group to Youth Week. Didn't mean to overlook Hol. He must have been the youngest one aboard. The kids had a wonderful time. They shared some of their experiences with us on Sunday morning in Sunday School and each one was excited about their trip.

PEARL BOONE, TOM'S mother, spent the weekend with us. We enjoyed having her. She has recently moved from San Angelo to Mobile Home Park between Canyon and Amarillo. This is the first time for us to have her close.

DAYNA VENHAUS ALSO went to Houston with the Don Magness family. Mary Ann said they took in Astro World and went to a ballgame in the Astrodome. The Astros hit a homerun and they got to see the score board light up. Reports were good and they don't return for another four months.

BOB GOODNIGHT WAS in Happy last Friday. I visited with him in Consumers.

JUNIOR SORELLE HAS answered the fuel shortage by purchasing a Chevy Luv pickup. I hear he is enjoying it.

OMA HAYES RETURNED this week from Wichita, Kansas, where she has been visiting Gwen and Jim Dyer and their Jacklyn. The rest of the family was not at home. Jane had returned to El Paso, Jimmie to school at Baylor, Jennifer was in Glorietta and Jeffrey was at camp. Mother said the Dyer household was unusually quiet.

WADE LEWIS WON the steer roping in Panhandle on Sunday. Sam McGregor won second and Sam Fox, third.

C. R. WESLEY won first in a go at the calf roping in Hartley on Sunday and third in the average. (Don't know if anyone else we know was there or not).

RAYMOND AND HARRIET Jackson and their four children of Rantoul, Illinois, are visiting the Eugene Jackson family this week. They followed them home from Nebraska. Raymond is in the service and will be stationed in Alaska after this furlough.

WILLA MAE, KENNETH and Roman Weaver's sister, and her husband, Herman, and three children from Marshall, Missouri, recently visited in Happy. The Schultes have seven children, but only three who are still in their home. This was their first visit to Happy.

SHARLA MILLER WON second in the Appaloosa Horse Show at Levelland last week. She showed a registered mare. The judge included in his criticism that Sharla would have won the show except for chewing gum. That would turn anyone against the gum habit, wouldn't it, Sharla?

SHARLA ALSO SHOWED at Tatum, New Mexico last Saturday. Sharla won fourth at Tatum. This weekend, the Millers will be at the Appaloosa show in Midland.

CHAN AND ANN Foster were married last weekend in Santa Fe. Their parents were able to attend the ceremony.

WILLIE AND JOHN Butler attended a tea in Lubbock on Sunday for Mrs. Frances Austin, a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

CLAY SIMONS, SON of Skip and Larry Simons, has been visiting in Darby, Montana with his grandmother, Charlotte Murphy. They have been visiting Skip's sister, Marge Butler, and her family. They returned to Colorado last week. His brother, Dwayne, visited grandparents in Colorado while Clay was in Montana. Both boys are back in Trinidad now with their grandparents, the Joe Simons, and are staying with their uncle, Dale Simons. They were expected home by now and I think their mom and dad are both anxious to see them.

RHONDA FELLERS, NANCY White, Lissa Foster, Nancy Woods, Kim McCaslin and Sheri Henry attended the Rainbow party in our home last Saturday. I served them frosted cokes and popcorn. They studied their work for the coming Grand Assembly.

ALINE AND MANN Littlefield left for Fort Worth on Thursday and returned on Monday evening with grandchildren Jim and Karen Littlefield. Mary Kate, who will be 20 this fall, works as a cashier in Fort Worth. (These are also the grandchildren of Merle and Ernest White). Eugene Littlefield will be flying to Philadelphia in the near future on business for his company.

PAULINE WESLEY, LACEY and Gertie Boyd and Mr. and Mrs. Ples Crane, David and Burlon Cook and their daughter Linda, and two granddaughters, spent Wednesday at Mrs. Virgie Cook's home in Canyon enjoying a reunion and visit.

ALICE MCGEHEE TRAVELED to Artesia, New Mexico and brought back the oldest granddaughter, Kim McManigal. Kim will be two in August. Dixie is doing some remodeling to their home while Hobie is at ROTC camp for a few weeks.

DAL WALTERS WON the Nebraska State Championship Trap Shoot in Class B in Doniphan, Nebraska last weekend. Dal has been trap shooting only since last May and has already won several trophies and pieces of silver at trap shoots. A beginner starts in Class D and works his way up to Class A. Dal has done an outstanding job by qualifying to compete in Class B. Dal will be one of the eleven finalists who will compete in the Blue-Gray Trap Shoot to be held in North Platte, Nebraska, Sept. 8 and 9. In all previous years, this contest has been held in Vandalia, Ohio. North Platte is much more centrally located. Dal was instrumental in bringing about this change of location. The story of the Nebraska Championship was published in the Omaha World Herald and will be in the National Trap Shoot Magazine.

ANNA MAE MCMANIGAL honored a former teacher, Mrs. Alma Jo Livingston Davis, with a luncheon in her home on Tuesday of last week. Mrs. Davis, who was Miss Livingston at the time that she taught in the Happy School System, was a high school history teacher. Anna Mae tells me that she taught 4th and 5th grades on the lower floor of the building and that the high school was on the second floor. This was the same building in which I attended 7 grades of elementary school. It is now a one story agriculture department. I understand there were a few more buildings on the premises at that time...and a windmill. All the students that had been in Mrs. Davis's classes were invited to the occasion: Catherine Rahlfs Miller, Frances Stephenson Hudson, Clara Guest Magness, Ruth Gazzaway Pennington of Canyon, Lillian Castleberry Burrows of San Antonio and Anna Mae and Hobart McManigal. George White was able to visit for a while in the morning. Alice White Penn was unable to attend because her granddaughters from Lubbock were visiting that day. Bob Francy and Bert Lemmons were also unable to attend.

MRS. ALMA JO Livingston Davis had been a proof reader for the Amarillo Daily News and had retired. When Anna Mae read the story in the newspaper, she corresponded with the former colleague and asked if such an occasion would be possible. Mrs. Davis still travels through Happy to Lockney to see her mother and was delighted.

LENA AND BABE Walberg are great-grandparents. Troy Lee Cook was born to Vickie and Greg Cook at 3 p.m. (Colorado time) on June 12th. Vickie and Greg Cook reside in Brighton, Colorado. Grandparents include Jo and Dave Sharp of Scavanger, Norway, and "Grandma" Ethel Forbus is the great-great-grandmother. Lena and Babe and Gramdma and probably Speck and Susie Aikman of Olton will be traveling to Brighton.

MRS. VIRGIL TOLES returned to Hereford on Monday after surgery on both eyes and the long stay in High Plains Baptist Hospital. She'll be taking life very easy for a time and I'm wondering when she'll be able to continue all that work on those beautiful afghans.

DANA FOSTER BROKE her arm in a mini bike accident on Monday morning. Dana had to spend a few days in Neblett hospital.

DOTTIE FOSTER'S PARENTS, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bachman of Guymon, Oklahoma, spent the weekend with the Dick Foster family. They stayed over one more night after Dana's accident.

GERRY AND EVANS Holland have both been in the Hospital. Gerry was still in Neblett the first of this week. Remember them?

BRENDA PARKER, SUSAN SoRelle, and Valerie Tipps are attending the basketball clinic in Levelland this week.

OUR SYMPATHY TO the family of Truly Coile who passed away late Friday afternoon after an apparent heart attack. Truly was a farmer and resident of the Happy area for 20 years. He was 52. Services were held in LaGrone Funeral Chapel on Sunday afternoon and burial was in Dreamland Cemetery. Rev. Hollis Payne, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Floydada and Bill Looney, minister of Happy's Church of Christ, officiated. Survivors include his wife, Leona; two daughters, Marilyn of the home, and Mrs. Robert Herring of Plainview; a son, Lee of Happy; three sisters, Mrs. Jack Jones and Mrs. Edna Lee Rannals, both of Stinnett, and Mrs. Ina Mae Stephens of Paris, Texas, and four grandsons.

ANNE MOUDY, LUCY and Foy's daughter, and Janet Moudy, Kathy and Alvin's daughter, both made the honor roll at LCC during the spring semester.

GENE SHIPMAN WAS voted the Happy Jaycee Outstanding Chairman of the month for his outstanding work on ROC, which is Jaycees Records.

RICHARD AND TRAVERNE VERMEIRE and their Marcus and Renee are in Mineola, Minnesota, visiting Richard's family.

CONNIE HAND, MARILYN Venhaus, Dana Cheek, Karen Hinton, and their sponsor, Karleen Moore, are in Lubbock attending an FHA Officers Workshop.

HAPPY 4-H MET on Monday evening in the Happy Jaycee Hall. Aaron Parker called the meeting to order. Russell Boman led the pledge of allegience to the American Flag. Jeanne Parker led the 4-H pledge and read the inspiration. Kim McCaslin and Lisa Payne told about their experience at 4-H State Roundup in Bryan and winning first place.

LISA PAYNE, KIM McCaslin, Aaron Parker, Eddie Joe Pearson and Robert Cole will be attending the 4-H leadership lab in Levelland on June 19, 20 and 21.

A SWIMMING PARTY is being planned by a committee composed of all juniors, Ronnie McDonald, Russell Boman, Pearl Perez, Andy Payne, Christi McCaslin, Carla Venhaus, and Linda McDonald, the adult on the committee.

JUDY CARLISLE REMINDED the girls of the County Dress Revue, June 29.

LAURA FELLERS AND Kim McCaslin presented the program on records. Nancy Parker, record leader, assisted them. Record books are due July 16th by 5 p.m.

REFRESHMENTS WERE SERVED by Sharla Miller, David and Ronnie McDonald, and Carolyn Moudy.

SWISHER COUNTY ADULT leaders will sponsor another dance to raise money for the 4-H Education Center in Brownwood. This benefit will be held June 23rd at the Tulia Bull Barn. Music will be provided by the Maines Brothers.

THE SECOND HALF of the Swisher County Horse Show is Monday, June 18, in the Cobb-Wheeler-Mote Arena in Tulia. Many Happy 4-H members will be participating.

MAYOR DICK RAILSBACK proclaimed Sunday, June 17, Beef for Father's Day in Happy. He was then presented a standing ten pound roast of beef from the Happy CowBelles by Othella McGehee, State Beef for Father's Day chairman. Local president, Vivian Woods, and local Beef for Father's Day chairman, Willie Butler, also watched as the mayor signed the proclamation.

BE SURE YOU serve your father beef on his day this Sunday.

See ya,
Mary Neal
